When the de luxe book trial was resumed to-day before Judge Foster Presiding, St. Hopkins of Tenkors was called as a witness. Hopkins is a book appraiser and salesman for Henry Mallon & Co. 6 Broadway, general book dealer and purveyor of rare editions. He was subpoenaed by the court as an expert book appraiser.

Assistant District Attorney Rosen took up first the books sold by James J. Farmer and others to Mrs. Emma Bird of Salt Lake City.

Hopkins set the value of various sets at from $12.50 a volume up to $15 a volume for the Oriental set. One set he valued at $15 for the entire fifteen volumes, or about $1 a book. Mrs. Bird paid some $95.00 for the books.

CHARGE IDIOTS
WERE SENT HOME TO MAKE RECORD

Kingsbury's Investigators Assailed at Civil Service Investigation.

It was charged at to-day's investigation of the Municipal Civil Service Commission that hopeless cripples and imbeciles were ordered sent home to poor families from city institutions by Charles Commissioner Kingsbury's forty-seven investigators. In the name of "social service work" and to make a record.

Deputy Attorney-General Frank Moss asserted that Commissioner Kingsbury must have "bounced" the local Civil Service body when he succeeded in having his forty-seven investigators appointed.

Mrs. Bellantoni of No. 227 Mulberry street told how one of Kingsbury's investigators notified her that she would have to take her hopelessly crippled, defective seven-year-old boy from Randall's Island, where he had been for some time.

"I love my poor boy, but I could not take care of him," said Mrs. Bellantoni. As the mother told her story the crippled boy laughed and chatted and at times became so noisy the proceedings were interrupted. When not laughing he gazed wildly about and stared at his mother as though she were a stranger.

"No that's social service," said Mr. Moss. "Well, if that is the type Mr. Kingsbury is following, I sincerely hope it goes up the flue."

Continuing her story, Mrs. Bellantoni said her husband received $15 a week as a cleaner in the Municipal Court. There are eight children. None work.

Mrs. Mary Gross of No. 56 Mulberry street told the story of her forty-year-old daughter, Theresa, who is deaf. The investigators want her to pay $4 a month to the city for the care of Theresa. If she doesn't continue to hand up Theresa will be sent home to her.

"I want to have ten children and a husband," said Mrs. Gross. "Now I have only four children and no husband. My man is dead. I am old, you can see. I have a son, a plumber's helper, who makes $11 to $15 a month."

"I have another child, a daughter, who is married. She can't help me. Why? Because she is married and has eight children. My fourth child is a consumptive. We live in three rooms."

"I could not have my poor Theresa back, because she would come to great harm. So I borrowed the money."

NATIVES REAL DANGER
IN SOUTH AFRICA, HE SAYS

American Just Returned Declares the Situation Serious for British.

Charles Eaton of Tacoma, Wash., who was a passenger aboard the White Star liner Adriatic to-day, had come direct from South Africa. He said:

"I left South Africa just before the recent declaration of martial law, following the revolt of the Boer commandos. Even before open revolt faced the government of the Union of South Africa conditions were growing more serious daily. Not only does the Government not know the extent of Boer dissatisfaction, but the attitude of the natives is getting to be a thing that overshadows even the Boer menace."

"With the withdrawal of many of the British regiments since the outbreak of the war in Europe the temper of the natives has been growing bolder. They outnumber the whites four to one in a large part of the Union and German spies among them are assiduously fostering their spirit of defiance. Should there be a concerted uprising of the blacks, South Africa would face a real peril."

"In all the towns home guards are being raised and drilled and a constant watch is kept on the native chieftains to catch the first sign of their revolt. In Johannesburg I saw a thousand Germans herded together into a 'bull pen' of barbed wire under guard. The Government did not dare trust them loose."

GIRL FAINTING SUSPECT
WRECK WHEN ARRAIGNED

Deprived of Cocaine, Alleged Shoplifter Nearly Collapses in Court.

Helen Gray and Edward Dardin, who were arrested as shoplifters yesterday, after the girl had pretended to faint and the man, in the excitement, had loaded two gowns into a suitcase, according to detectives, were held to-day by Magistrate Nolan in the Yorkville Court, the girl in $2.00 and the man in $1.00.

The girl was almost a wreck. The police say she is a cocaine user, and, deprived of the drug, she nearly collapsed. It was for having cocaine in her possession that she was held in the heavier hall. The pair will be examined Monday.

Dardin's wife, Mrs. May Dardin, who was found in a respectable lodging house yesterday, was arraigned in the West Side Court on a charge of having cocaine in her possession. In her room, the police say, they found two dresses and a pair of shoes, the description of gowns stolen from Stern Bros. some days ago by a fainting woman and her man companion.

FLEECE WORK-SEEKERS.

Woman Employment Agent Sent to Albany Prison.

Isabel Morton, a good looking young woman, who gave her home address as No. 189 Claremont avenue, Brooklyn, was sentenced to-day to the State Prison for Women at Auburn for not less than one year nor more than two years by Judge Nott in General Session.

For the past six years, it is charged, she has made a good living by defrauding young men, who are seeking employment. She inserted advertisements in newspapers saying that she had positions for cash, and she secured the managers, with good salaries attached. When her victims called upon her she cited a list of names as a guarantee of their honesty.

George J. Reamer of Luzon, Sullivan County, N. Y., gave her $200 on July 9 as security for a position as manager of a moving picture theatre, and he caused her arrest when he could not get the money back.

M'KELWAY TALKS FOR PEACE.

Pays Tribute to Wilson for His Example and Restraint.

ALBANY, Oct. 22.—A plea for peace marked the address of Dr. Clair McKelway, Chancellor of the University of the State of New York, to-day in opening the fiftieth annual convocation of the university.

"It was Franklin who hoped for union without war," said the speaker. "It was Lincoln who invoked peace for all. It was Grant who strengthened it by arbitration. It is Wilson who has taught it and wrought it by example and restraint. It was all of them and many others whose great and great who have hailed peace as the handmaid of education. And as conditions of education it is this conviction that should magnify peace on earth, among men of good will. Only that can bring the best in the heart of man nearest to man's best conception of the heart of God."

WOMAN AUTO VICTIM,
HELD AS INTOXICATED,
ACCUSES SURGEONS

Widow Charges She Had to Beg for Treatment After Wrong Diagnosis.

A remarkable story of alleged police and ambulance surgeon stupidity was told by Mrs. Mary Heavey, a widow, thirty-six, of No. 500 Franklyn avenue, when she was arraigned in Adams Street Police Court, Brooklyn, to-day before Magistrate Walsh on a charge of intoxication. She has been a prisoner in Kings County Hospital for sixteen days.

Mrs. Heavey told the Court that she was run down by an automobile at Liberty and Concord streets at 7 o'clock in the evening of Oct. 6. Two men lifted her into the car and took her to Long Island College Hospital, where she lost consciousness. When she regained her senses her face was bandaged and a nurse told her three stitches had been taken in the cut in her chin.

The next she knew she was in a patrol wagon with a policeman named Reed. He took her to the Poplar street station and locked her up on a charge of intoxication.

"I was suffering awful pain," said Mrs. Heavey in court to-day. "And about 10 or 11 o'clock they brought in Dr. Curtis, a young ambulance surgeon from the Holy Family Hospital. Although my body and legs were a mass of bruises and I was suffering from internal injuries, he called it a case of 'chronic alcoholism' and went away."

"Several hours later I screamed so loudly they got another ambulance surgeon from Brooklyn Hospital. He called my case one of intoxication and went away."

"At 11 o'clock the next morning my condition was so serious that I was sent to the Kings County Hospital, where I have been ever since under treatment for my injuries."

Magistrate Walsh paroled Mrs. Heavey until Saturday and ordered the probation officer to investigate her story.

MOTHER SEES RUNAWAY
HORSE HIT 6-YEAR-OLD

Speeding Animal Also Strikes
Woman and Another Child—
First Victim May Die.

A horse attached to a light buggy and driven by Louis Ershowsky, a grocer of No. 55 First street, bolted east through Ninety-ninth street at noon to-day after it had taken fright at the blowing of a factory whistle.

It dashed across Third avenue, shaking Ershowsky from his seat and overturning the buggy and headed straight for several hundred children emerging from a public school.

The youngsters scattered and the horse crashed into an electric light pole and demolished the buggy. Then he mounted to the sidewalk and continued at increased speed. In front of No. 215 East Ninety-ninth street he ran into six-year-old Samuel Dine before the child's mother, who was on the steps, could save him.

Policeman Cotter twice tried to stop the animal, but was shaken off after being dragged for many feet. Patrick Kent of No. 207 Third avenue finally caught the horse close to Third avenue.

Young Dine was hurried to a hospital. His condition is serious. He was injured internally and terribly bruised. A woman and another child who were struck were little hurt.
